

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

In our journey through this world, amid the noise and chaos, a gentle yet powerful voice calls out to us. It might be a whisper in the wind, a nudge in our spirit, a verse from Scripture that resonates within us. Friends, if you've ever paused and listened, you might have sensed it—the voice of God saying, "I am trying to save." This profound truth is woven throughout the Bible, reflecting God's unyielding love and relentless pursuit of us. And before we dive in, if this message is already stirring something in you, hit the subscribe button and stay connected to God's Word daily.

Today, we embark on a journey together, exploring this majestic truth. Consider the Father heart of God, who longs for all to be saved and come to a knowledge of the truth, as expressed by Paul in 1 Timothy 2:4. It's a divine pursuit not limited by time or circumstance but underscored by God's enduring mercy and grace. Have you ever wondered what it truly means when God says, "I am trying to save"? It encapsulates His desire to rescue us not just from the perils of this world but from eternal separation from Him. It's an invitation to step into His light, to embrace His love, and to partake in a powerful transformation.

The Bible is a rich tapestry of redemption stories. From Genesis to Revelation, we see God weaving a plan to restore His creation to Himself. Think of the patriarch Abraham, who trusted in God's promise against all odds; Moses, who led his people out of bondage into the Promised Land; and Jesus Christ, the epitome of salvation, who declared in John 3:17, "For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through Him." These stories are not just historical accounts; they are living testimonies of God's saving grace, reaching across generations to touch us today.

So, what does it mean for you and me right now, in our daily walk? It's an invitation from God to partner with Him, to listen and respond to His call, to be vessels of His love and instruments of His peace. This divine invitation is as relevant today as it was thousands of years ago. Every day, God is reaching out to save, to redeem, to restore. Are you listening? Are you ready to respond? Together, let's delve deeper into God's Word, exploring the many dimensions of His saving grace.

Number 1: The Relentless Pursuit of Love

Imagine a shepherd who leaves the ninety-nine sheep in an open country to find the one that is lost. This parable, shared by Jesus in Matthew 18:12-14, paints a vivid picture of God's relentless love. The shepherd doesn't leave the lost sheep to wander aimlessly; he seeks it out with determination and care. Similarly, God's love compels Him to pursue us, no matter how far we have strayed. His love is not passive but fiercely active, breaking through barriers and reaching into the darkest corners to bring us back into His fold.

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

This relentless pursuit is highlighted in the story of Hosea and Gomer (Hosea chapters 1-3). Hosea, a prophet, is instructed by God to marry Gomer, an adulterous woman, as a vivid illustration of God's unyielding love for His people Israel. Despite her unfaithfulness, Hosea's love remains steadfast, mirroring how God loves us despite our shortcomings and wanderings. God's covenant love is not based on our worthiness but on His unwavering faithfulness. This is the love that says, "I am trying to save," offering redemption and reconciliation to those who would receive it.

Understanding this truth calls us to a transformed life. It challenges us to reflect God's love in our relationships, to be persistent and patient with those who have strayed, just as God is patient with us. It's a call to embody the heart of the Good Shepherd, reaching out to the lost and broken, sharing the hope of salvation with a world in need. How are we embracing God's relentless pursuit in our lives? Are we partnering with God in His mission of love, letting our actions speak louder than words?

We are called to live and love differently, fueled by God's relentless pursuit of our hearts. Let this truth inspire us to be the hands and feet of Jesus, to reach out beyond our comfort zones and extend God's love to a hurting world. If you feel this call, step forward in faith, knowing that you are not alone; God walks with you, equipping you for the journey. Let this relentless love inspire you to be a beacon of hope, encouraging others with the message of God's saving grace.

Number 2: The Light in the Darkness

In the beginning, when the earth was formless and void, God spoke light into existence (Genesis 1:3). Light dispels darkness, bringing clarity and life. This act at creation is a metaphor for God's saving work throughout history. When we are engulfed in darkness, whether due to sin, despair, or uncertainty, God's light shines brighter, guiding us to safety. Jesus declares Himself as the "light of the world" in John 8:12, promising that whoever follows Him will never walk in darkness but have the light of life. This is an invitation to step out of darkness and into His marvelous light.

Consider the dramatic conversion of Saul, recounted in Acts 9:1-19. Once a fierce persecutor of Christians, Saul's encounter with the risen Christ transformed his life radically. A blinding light halted him on the road to Damascus, symbolizing God's intervention and grace piercing through his spiritual blindness. Saul, later known as Paul, became a vessel for spreading the gospel, illuminating the truth of Christ to the Gentiles. This is how God saves, by turning even the darkest paths into avenues of His glory.

In practical terms, embracing God's light means allowing His truth to penetrate our hearts,

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

illuminating areas that need healing and surrender. It invites us to walk in transparency, confessing our weaknesses so His strength can be perfected in us. We are called to be light-bearers, sharing God's truth and love in our homes, workplaces, and communities. When we let God's light shine through us, we reflect His nature and draw others out of the shadows and into His saving grace.

If this message inspires you, don't forget to subscribe for more Bible insights every week. Our world needs this light more than ever, and we are invited to be carriers of it. By doing so, we transform cultures and reshape destiny, pointing others to the One who can save them. Let the light of Christ shine brightly in you, dispelling fear, doubt, and sin, and leading others into the hope and freedom found in Him. Are you ready to let your light shine and be a beacon of God's saving grace?

Number 3: The Invitation to Abundant Life

When Jesus speaks of salvation, it's not just about escaping something; it's about entering into something far more profound—abundant life. In John 10:10, Jesus states, "I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." This promise extends beyond mere survival; it's about a life filled with purpose, joy, and divine connection. God's saving work invites us into this abundant life, where we experience His fullness even amid trials and tribulations.

Nicodemus, a Pharisee, comes to Jesus at night seeking truth (John 3:1-21). Jesus talks about being born again, revealing that salvation introduces us into a new realm of existence—a spiritual rebirth. This new life transforms our very being, aligning us with God's purposes and opening pathways for His blessings. As we grow in our relationship with God, we begin to see His hand in every aspect of our lives, finding contentment and hope in His presence.

Living abundantly also means participating in God's mission—being agents of His peace and justice, channels of His grace, and bearers of His love. It's a daily choice to live under His lordship, trusting Him with our lives, and reflecting His character in how we treat others. This new life changes how we view success and happiness, grounding our identities not in worldly gains but in the eternal riches of God's kingdom.

This invitation to abundant life is available to all who believe and follow Christ. In our communities, we have the responsibility to extend this invitation, welcoming others into God's family and showing them a different way of living. If this message inspires you, don't forget to subscribe for more Bible insights every week. Our lives become testimonies of God's saving grace, drawing others to seek the abundance we have found. Let us embrace this life and share it with passion, offering others a glimpse of God's heart and the life-changing power of His salvation.

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

Number 4: The Restoration of All Things

God's promise of salvation goes beyond individual transformation—it encompasses the restoration of all creation. In Romans 8:20-22, Paul reflects on creation itself waiting eagerly for liberation from its "bondage to decay." God's plan of salvation includes restoring what has been broken by sin, making all things new (Revelation 21:5). This grand narrative invites us to be participants in this restoration work, anticipating the coming of God's kingdom in its fullness.

Look at the story of Nehemiah, who led efforts to rebuild Jerusalem's walls (Nehemiah 1-6). His determination and faith reflect how God uses us to once again restore and heal. As God works through us, the physical restoration mirrors the spiritual restoration He accomplishes in hearts. We are His vessels, chosen to make visible His justice, mercy, and love in practical ways that impact the world around us.

This restoration extends to our relationships, communities, and even our relationship with the environment. As believers, we embody God's peace and reconciliation, healing divisions and fostering unity. We actively engage in acts of service, love, and stewardship, reflecting God's redemptive plan in everything we do. It is a ministry of reconciliation that fulfills God's desire, as articulated in 2 Corinthians 5:18-19, for us to be His ambassadors, promoting peace and restoration.

Our role today is both profound and privileged. We are co-laborers with God in His redemptive narrative, called to bring about change that reflects His kingdom values. Through our words, actions, and commitments, we demonstrate a glimpse of the new heaven and new earth. If this message inspires you, don't forget to subscribe for more Bible insights every week. Let us step into this calling, confident in the Lord's promise to restore all things, and be active participants in His kingdom work on earth. Are you ready to join in this divine movement?

Number 5: The Assurance of Salvation

Salvation is not just a future hope; it is a present and assured reality for those who believe in Christ. In Ephesians 2:8-9, Paul reminds us that it is by grace through faith we have been saved. This assurance is a gift from God, securing our eternity and giving us the confidence to live boldly for Him. It transforms our fears into faith and our doubts into trust, anchoring us in the unshakeable truth of God's love.

The story of the thief on the cross is a poignant example (Luke 23:39-43). In his final moments, as he turns to Jesus, he receives the promise of paradise. This encounter illustrates the immediate and complete nature of God's saving grace—it's never too late, and no one is beyond the reach of

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

His love. The assurance of salvation brings a peace that surpasses understanding, guarding our hearts and minds in Christ Jesus (Philippians 4:7).

Living with this assurance empowers us to face life's challenges with courage and hope. It invites us to witness boldly, live commendably, and love unconditionally, knowing our destiny is secure in God's hands. We are freed from the bondage of fear and able to embrace our identity as God's children, living with purpose and passion for His glory. This assurance also calls us to share Christ's hope with others, offering them the same assurance we have found in Him.

For the believer, salvation is not a distant dream but a current reality, shaping our daily walk and reinforcing our eternal security. Let us live with this assurance, embodying the peace and joy found only in Christ, and actively share this message of hope with those around us. Are we showing others the path to this assurance, encouraging them to trust in the Lord's promises as we do? The opportunity stands before you; will you take it?

Number 6: The Personal Call to Transformation

One of the most personal aspects of salvation is its call to transformation. Paul writes in 2 Corinthians 5:17, "If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has passed away, behold, the new has come." Salvation is not static; it triggers a profound, ongoing transformation in our lives, inviting us to become more like Christ every day. This is a lifelong journey of faith and obedience, marked by the refining work of the Holy Spirit in our hearts.

Consider Peter's journey from a brash fisherman to a bold apostle (Matthew 4:18-20; Acts 2:14). His transformation was not instantaneous but shaped by walking closely with Jesus, learning from mistakes, and growing in faith. When we respond to God's saving call, we embark on a similar journey of change, embracing the new identity God has given us. This transformation encompasses our thoughts, actions, and purposes, aligning them with God's will and His kingdom purposes.

Transformation is also about practical steps of faith—choosing forgiveness over resentment, compassion over indifference, and integrity over compromise. It's living out the fruits of the Spirit (Galatians 5:22-23) and consciously allowing God to mold us into His likeness. This change emanates from knowing God deeply, spending time in His Word, and communing with Him in prayer. It's being in community with other believers who encourage and challenge us to grow.

Transformation is both a gift and a responsibility. As we are changed by God's saving grace, we are called to impact our families, communities, and the world, being carriers of His love and truth. If this message inspires you, don't forget to subscribe for more Bible insights every week. Embrace the transformation God offers, step boldly into your new identity, and let the world see God's glory reflected in you. Are you ready to be transformed and become an agent of change? The invitation stands; how will you respond?

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

Number 7: The Promise of Eternal Life

Salvation culminates in the promise of eternal life, a hope that sustains us through life's trials and tribulations. Jesus assures us in John 14:2-3, "In my Father's house are many rooms... I go to prepare a place for you." This hope transcends our earthly existence, grounding us in the reality that one day we will dwell eternally with God, free from pain and suffering. This promise is central to the Christian faith, offering a future that is secure and wondrous beyond measure.

This promise was made tangible when Jesus rose from the grave, defeating death and offering us the same victory. The resurrection is the cornerstone of our faith and hope, transforming our mourning into joy and our sorrow into celebration. As we look forward to eternal life, we are reminded that our labor is not in vain (1 Corinthians 15:58); everything we do for God bears eternal significance and reward.

As we anticipate this glorious future, it impacts how we live today. It encourages us to prioritize what truly matters, to invest in the eternal rather than the temporal, and to bring others with us on this journey towards eternity. Our hope in heaven fosters patience and perseverance, emboldening us to live with boldness and purpose.

This promise is ours to embrace and share. We are entrusted with proclaiming this living hope, pointing others to the assurance of eternal life through Jesus Christ. Let us live with this eternal perspective, influencing how we engage with the world and reflecting God's kingdom here on earth. Are you ready to embrace this promise fully, living each day with the anticipation of what's to come? Keep your eyes fixed on eternity, and walk with the assurance that God's promise stands unbroken.

Conclusion

As we've explored the multifaceted nature of God's saving grace—from His relentless pursuit of our hearts, the light He offers in our darkness, to the invitation to abundant life and the assurance of salvation—we see His love painted vividly across the canvas of Scripture. Each narrative, each promise, points to a God who longs to restore and redeem, inviting us into a relationship that shapes our past, present, and future.

God's love transcends our understanding, steadfast and unchanging. In Him, we find our purpose, identity, and ultimate fulfillment. Just as He promises to restore all things, He assures us of a resurrected life with Him for eternity. This journey of faith invites us to be co-laborers with Christ, reflecting His grace in our daily walk and drawing others to the same hope and assurance we've discovered.

1. God Says — I AM TRYING TO SAVE

By System Import | Sermon | March 14, 2026

Every challenge becomes a stepping stone toward experiencing His grace, and every blessing serves as a reminder of His faithfulness. As we respond to His call to salvation, let's continue proclaiming His name, sharing the transformational power of His Word, and living as testimonies of His unfailing love. Before you go, make sure to subscribe, like this video, and share it with someone who needs encouragement today. And join us next time as we uncover another powerful truth from God's Word.